Author's note

All of these stories have been previously published, but so far, they have either been available only as single e-books or they were published as part of an anthology, so readers who prefer paperbacks missed out, as did readers who wanted to have my short stories all in one place.

Now, for the very first time, all of the contemporary romance short stories I have written so far are available in one volume for you to enjoy without having to hunt down the individual short stories.

You can reconnect with your favorite characters that you got to know in some of my novels, for example, sharing a sexy moment with Lauren and Grace from Damage Control, but you also get to meet new characters such as Paula, a technician at a radio station with a crush on the host of a late-night radio show, or Tricia, a writer who goes on a blind date in a bookstore.

Whether you have read these stories before or are discovering them for the first time, I hope you enjoy this collection.

Happy reading!

Jae
